

The Path to a Canadian Securities Regulator

Date: Wednesday February 24, 2010

Time: 12:00 - 2:00 PM

Location: The National Club, Main Dining Room, 303 Bay Street, Toronto

Function Type: Luncheon Seminar

OVERVIEW

Doug Hyndman, Chair and CEO, Canadian Securities Transition Office will discuss the path forward to achieving the Government of Canada's goal of establishing a single securities regulator for Canada.

The holy grail of market oversight and governance for Canada has always been the adoption of a single securities regulator model as opposed to the patchwork system of provincial regulation that currently exists. There is no doubt, the road to establishing a single securities regulator will be challenging and fraught with pitfalls, but the Government of Canada and a number of provincial governments have indicated their strong desire to achieving this objective within a reasonably short period of time. Our speaker has been tasked with guiding this herculean project to a successful conclusion.

SPEAKER

Mr. Douglas Hyndman
Chair and Chief Executive Officer, Canadian Securities Transition Office

Mr. Hyndman was appointed chair and chief executive officer of the Canadian Securities Transition Office, an agency established by Parliament in July 2009. The purpose of this office is to lead and manage the transition to a Canadian securities regulator. He also chairs the Advisory Committee of Participating Provinces and Territories, which represents the jurisdictions that are working with the Government of Canada to establish the Canadian securities regulator.

From 1987 to 2009, Mr. Hyndman was chair of the British Columbia Securities Commission. As chair of the British Columbia Securities Commission since 1987, he has steered the regulation of securities in that province through a period of profound change in the markets. Between 1984 and 1987, Mr. Hyndman was assistant deputy minister with responsibility for advising the government on economic, fiscal, budgetary and tax policy.
